Applications are invited for an Assistant Professor of Clinical Education position in Educational Psychology with a focus in Learning and Motivation at the University of Southern California Rossier School of Education. The position is a 12-month renewable, non-tenure track, on-campus appointment. On-campus faculty members teach 24 units in a 12-month academic year.

The mission of the Rossier School is to improve urban education locally, nationally, and globally. Urban areas typically have unique strengths including racial, ethnic, linguistic, and cultural diversity. Urban regions face challenges associated with equity and access, poverty, density, immigration, and strained social conditions around housing, healthcare, and security. We seek educators who can prepare students to start and advance careers as teachers, educational leaders, counselors and scholars. Rossier faculty benefit from vigorous debate and seek colleagues who are willing to engage in discussions about the future of education.

We are looking for a candidate who has expertise educational psychology, particularly in the areas of learning, motivation, and human development. Candidates should have a proven record of teaching excellence at the graduate level in educational psychology-related courses and should have a strong understanding of the application of learning and motivational theories and principles to various learning contexts and environments. Candidates should also have prior professional experience in an education-related field, preferably in K-12 or post-secondary institutions.

The candidate for this position will be expected to teach courses in learning and motivation on-ground and online in the following programs: the Educational Leadership EdD Program, the Organizational Change and Leadership EdD Program, and the Learning Design and Technology Master's Program. In addition to teaching, the candidate will be expected to contribute to curriculum design efforts in the school and serve on school and university committees. Candidates will also have the opportunity to supervise doctoral dissertations for Rossier EdD students.

Interested applicants should visit the Rossier Faculty Opportunities webpage for more information and to apply: http://rossier.usc.edu/faculty-and-research/open-faculty-positions/. Applicants must provide a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and three names for references. Review of applications will begin May 16, 2016 and continue until the positions are filled.
