Janet Sonco MAT ’17 teaches fifth grade in her hometown of Whittier, California. She is passionate about helping students become successful, ambitious and courageous citizens.

The Master of Arts in Teaching (MAT) program will equip you with the theories, principles and skills you need to make a meaningful difference for students in urban K-12 schools. USC Rossier’s rigorous program allows you to simultaneously finish your master’s degree and complete the requirements to be recommended for a preliminary teaching credential. Additionally, you have the option to add a special education credential, gifted certificate or bilingual authorization for Spanish certificate. Our emphasis on high-needs schools will prepare you to leave the program ready to address complex pedagogical and social issues in any educational setting.
Through the MAT program, you will gain:
- Hands-on experience teaching in a classroom
- Mentorship from a guiding teacher
- Mastery applying theories and instructional methods
- Technological literacy to leverage new media in curriculum design and learning assessment.

HANDS-ON TEACHING EXPERIENCE
The MAT program integrates fieldwork with coursework. You will gain invaluable practical experience applying theories and instructional methods in a local urban or high-needs classroom under the mentorship of an experienced guiding teacher.
