

Enhance student experience in higher education

Jordan Carmona ME '18 has worked as a residential coordinator and Judicial Administrator for Student Judicial Affairs and Community Standards at the University of Southern California.

The Master of Education in Postsecondary Administration and Student Affairs (PASA) will prepare you for a variety of professional roles in higher education administration and student affairs — including but not limited to academic advising, residential life, student advocacy, campus activities and athletic programs. You will also learn how to address inequities and effect change, ensure that student voices are heard and help students realize their full potential.

Graduates from this program typically work at two- or four-year institutions, public research universities, private liberal arts colleges, graduate and professional schools and for-profit institutions.

Both full-time and part-time options are available.

GAIN HANDS-ON EXPERIENCE

USC Rossier’s graduate assistantships provide hands-on experience in higher education settings and preparation for your desired career upon graduation. While the majority of PASA students participate in graduate assistantships on the USC campus, the city of Los Angeles is home to many colleges and universities. With the full support and guidance of our team, you will have the freedom to select and apply for an opportunity tailored to your personal goals.

Graduate assistantship positions are compensated by an hourly wage, tuition remission, or, in the case of residential education, room and board.
